HammerattheConstructionSite! Each word is invariable, and meanings have to be modified by inserting additional words, or understood by The Language Construction Kit. It lets you specify beginning, medial and final consonants, clusters, vowels and diphthongs, and the number of syllables you want. Adjectives can be an entirely different word class, as in English; or they can be a subset of nouns considering morphology and behaviour as in Spanish or Latin; or they can behave like verbs as some do in Japanese.

This all boils down to a principle: to invent an alphabet, you must know where it fits. If you are a fan, you can find descriptions of the languages he invented in Arda in the Tongues of Arda.
