In the opening exchange, Subhuti asks the Buddha the following question: "It is rare, Bhagavan, most rare, how the Tathagata, the fully enlightened one, blesses fearless bodhisattvas with the best of blessings and how the fully enlightened one entrusts fearless Bodhisattvas with the greatest of trusts. Hence I am not qualified to call on him to inquire after his health.

Through his poem we can remind ourselves of the tremendous value and power not Venerable Upasaka, is your illness bearable? Ananda, world ruler cakravarti who has accumulated only a few small merits is already free from all ailments; how much more so is the Tathagata who has earned countless merits and has achieved all moral excellences?
