I was extremely overweight—almost pounds. Everything changed. All this is only possible, because I believe, that I know the absolute prerequisite of being happy and fulfilled.

I was in a moment of my life where I was questioning everything—once again—and my grades dropped in my second semester and my parents were kind of mad about. Still somewhat stunned, but feeling blessed and blissed simultaneously, I left clutching the card which contained the life-changing words that would have a profound impact not only on my two months in Bangladesh, but on the rest of my life.

I would have tubes connected to my heart coming out of my chest, and so much. On coming home I found his business had gone bankrupt, he had lost his home, and his marriage had broken up. She wanted a punching bag.
